AFTERNOON: Gynecology Symposium & the Charles Sumner Bacon, MD Lectureship.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25
MORNING: 13th Annual Laird Wilson Jr, PhD Symposium
AFTERNOON: Gynecologic Oncology Symposium
WELCOME TO OUR ANNUAL CONFERENCE: CHALLENGING TOPICS IN OB/GYN

an expanded annual conference from the University of Illinois Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. We have invited several nationally and internationally-recognized faculty to give state-of-the-art lectures on challenging clinical problems such as pregnancy of unknown location (PUL), abnormal uterine bleeding, vulvar lesions, optimal management of labor, and gynecologic cancers. In addition, several of our own faculty and others from the University campus have been invited to present case-based lectures.

As in years past, we are pleased to host the 8th Annual Antonio Scommegna, MD Symposium and the 13th Annual Laird Wilson Jr, PhD Symposium. We are proud to continue honoring these two extraordinary clinician-scientists whose careers were committed to improving women’s reproductive and obstetrical care.

This year, we have added two new symposia. The Gynecology Symposium features the first Charles Sumner Bacon, MD Lectureship. Dr. Bacon was the first Department Head of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and was instrumental in the University of Illinois’ acquisition of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1913, resulting in the establishment of the University of Illinois College of Medicine. The Gynecologic Oncology Symposium focuses on cervical cancer, cancer in pregnancy, along with an update on evaluation of hereditary cancer syndromes.

I look forward to reuniting with colleagues, friends, and providers from throughout the state and beyond, and meeting with our alumni. Our Department has undergone major physical renovations this year and we look forward to giving you a tour and discussing future plans.

Mark your calendars, and I hope to see you soon,

Mary Stephenson, MD, MSc

Ernst Lengyel, MD, PhD, is a Professor of Obstetrics/Gynecology at the University of Chicago. He is a gynecologic oncologist who specializes in advanced surgical treatments that are designed to improve the survival of patients with ovarian cancer. His research is dedicated to improving our understanding of the biology of ovarian cancer metastasis and finding novel drugs for its treatment. His laboratory has elucidated the first steps of ovarian cancer metastasis by showing that adipocytes in the omentum promote ovarian cancer metastasis, findings published in the Journal of Clinical Investigation and Nature Medicine.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Discuss diagnosis and management options of early pregnancy loss, the association between infertility and reproductive cancers, and needs of the infertility patient.

2. Describe the classification and management of abnormal uterine bleeding and fibroids, the risks associated with endometrial ablation, and how to diagnose and manage vulvar dermatosis.

3. Describe current practices in Labor and Delivery to maximize successful, safe vaginal deliveries (including TOLAC), how to decrease postpartum infection rates, and the safe use of oxytocin and management of diabetes in labor.

4. Delineate the principles of managing surgical complications in gynecologic oncology, and how to implement the new cervical cancer screening algorithm, how to manage possible gynecologic cancers in pregnancy and how to determine when genetic counseling for hereditary female cancers is warranted.

WHO WILL BENEFIT?

Physicians, nurses, nurse midwives, fellows, residents, medical students.

CME CREDITS

The University of Illinois College of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The University of Illinois College of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 15 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

NURSES

We are currently applying for Continuing Nursing Education hours for this educational activity. The University of Illinois Hospital & Health Sciences System (OH-341, 9/06/2015) is an approved provider of continuing nursing education by the Ohio Nurses Association (OBN-001-91), an accredited approver of the American Nurses Credentialing Center’s Commission on Accreditation.
